

Figure 1: Relationship between exposure time to this awful plot and your annoyed level. The units of this annoyed metric, as well as how I calculated this metric, are none of your concern. As you can obviously see, the annoyed metric is positively correlated with exposure time. There is almost an exponential relationship, but I was too lazy to fit a regression line to test this.